Summary

Mozgova T. The Social, Cultural and Linguistic Characteristics of Japanese Hieroglyphics as Iconic and Symbolic Information System. The attempt is made to consider the social, cultural and linguistic features of Japanese hieroglyphics compared with alphabetic symbolic and symbolic information system in this article. The author convincingly argues that hieroglyphic type of communication transmits the sense, and alphabet type – the sound of words. As a result - the emergence of two distinct semantic models of knowledge of the world: in the East - discrete thinking and imaginative perception of the world; West - linear thinking and verbalized perception of the world. Keywords: Hieroglyph, hieroglyphics, pictogram, hieroglyphic writing, alphabetic writing, linear thinking, discrete thinking.
